' (Never to be)
FORGOTTEN HERO'

BILL HUNTER
MEMORIAL COMMENTS BOOK

~ 30th July 2015 ~

x.

We love you and miss you grandad all over love from Andy, Lella, Ruby and Phoebe. X♥

Bill, I knew you before I ever met you. You were a giant of the left in Liverpool.
Peter

Sincere condolences to Bill's Family.

Bill always greeted us thus..... "it's the 3 Witches!"

(Hubble, bubble, toil and Trouble!)

Remembered with great affection, the 3 Witches

Cathy Wilson.

Ann Bannister

Hesley Parkwood.
(and Clark)

Bill + Ray.

A force to be reckoned with together. and fond memories of times together at the cottage.

with love.

Erin,

I first met Bill in 1984 when we were collecting for the miners. The Liverpool Group would go back to his flat where we sat around talked about the world. Those discussions were to have a big influence in my life.

Sam Somoff

Rest in Peace Bill - always admired you - you meant so much to me!!!
Neil Peck

Bill and Rae - were the two most influential people in the short history of my political career - I met Bill - in the 60s along with Rae. Had the privilege of working with him after the 1985 - split in the world. My political life - developed in leaps at times - as an independent thinker who at times - from that point on. Before I was good at following others - afterwards - they followed me. The lasting imprint will be - one of good to have met and enjoyed his advice - if not always following it - John V.

Bill - a principled class fighter.
A man whose life, whose story, must not be forgotten. An internationalist. A career with a real sense of history, a responsibility toward the past as well as the future. You can't make the future unless you're honest about the past.

I salute Bill's lifetime of struggle for the working class, for revolution.
Long may his tradition be remembered. A glorious contribution!

I have many memories of Bill, although none of them are recent.

One thing that particularly stays in my mind, small in its way but says so much.

He spoke at a meeting in Hull organised by the Trade Council.
Thatcher's "There is no real thing as society" was still in the air & a question was raised about it.

In simple terms & without jargon (and that is the key point) he just demolished Thatcher's position.

I remember Bill Hunter at WRP meetings (the last ones) standing up to Healy - he never accepted the awful Thrip Gitt said. He, Bill, was a true rock, a principled strugler for worker's rights, not many of them left to give inspiration to the young ones Massie Bank.

Bell - a principled class fighter.
A man whose life, whose story,
must not be forgotten. An intellectual. A career
with a real sense of history,
a responsibility toward the
past as well as the future. You can't make the future unless
you're honest about the past.

Terry Foster
Admiral.

Precious memories of a long tradition of struggle. Ray & Bell inspired me and many others.
Hopefully new generations will also learn and make a better world.

Because Bill never lost confidence in the working class to take responsibility for its own future and therefore the future of humanity — he has left many texts of great importance to the younger generation coming into action today and we must ensure that these historic texts and experiences are made available. Bill was a friend, a comrade and a teacher to me personally. Thanks for bringing us together to celebrate Bill's life. Dot Fisher.

Bill.,

William (Bill) Rushton
reached me through you.

I will always be grateful, and try to pass on such inspiration to the Bills that will continue the fight for justice.
Peace! Tayo & Helen

ONLY SAW YOU SPEAK A COUPLE OF TIMES, BUT A REAL INSPIRATION, AND
YOU BROUGHT UP A LOVE
FRON!"

I came into contact with you over the defence of refugees in 2003 and admired you ever since.
A life well-lived, Bill.

I first heard Bill at the last ever joint DUP/Trades Council Meeting (1968?69?)
- 'having a rant' - so great he remained a lifelong socialist, thinker and fighter and produced a lovely family with Ray.

To Bill's Family,

Your father was a genuine asset to the working class in word, thought and deed.

Bill was a long time supporter of socialism and will be remembered with fond memories.

I remember your inebriated sense of humour Bill, which was quite something in the old WRP days! Hilary (Harrocks)

Hi Bill. Bill has 2 cases que aprendi de usted, que no se puede ser un revolucionario sin ser buen padre, esposo or compañero lo mas importante es sentir el dolor de los otros.

Bill is remembered on four continents because of his lifelong struggle for internationalism & Trotskyism. with Bill forever Martin.

Always a friendly face but about all principled and an anchor for having a correct political position Peter.

When I went to the launch of Bill's Edward Rushton book, at the old Picket in Hordman St in (....?) the books hadn't been printed yet, so the publisher had mocked up some copies for display.

I picked one up and flicked through it.
I was absolutely bowled over. Here was a book about a revolutionary, by a revolutionary. The subject was a blind poet, & here is a most beautiful, poetic, blank tribute to him.

So this is it: the book we all write together, all these years later, in tribute to Our Bill.

All Love, Always,

My Uncle Bull

What a Breath of Fresh Air, A Rabble.

From A Staunch Methodist family, the youngest of four Ezrae also was very religious - Bull was a free spirit not that I saw him a lot, His travels Had taken him to Jersey and on these irregular visits to the city the stories and memories were wonderful to hear.

Like folk and Ray has news has that wonderful ability

Wishing you could be with us today seeing how big the Labour movement has grown The struggle goes on on and the people of today have the courage you had we achieve it

All the Best

Deepest condolences upon Bill's passing but as Pitelie aptly said at the funeral ceremony, Bill lives on in the memories of all who met him and even in many who did not meet him but read his writings.

I enjoyed the few meetings I attended at which Bill spoke and the too few conversations I had with him. I found him steady and enthusiastic to share his considerable experience of the struggle for socialism in an approachable and friendly way. I wish I had had opportunities to talk to Bill many more times.
John Kavan, Stockport

My abiding memory of Bill is at a meeting I was chairing. Bill stood up and was speaking for a while, I said 'thanks bill' and he ignored me, as I repeated this he continued to talk and smile, I realised he had fallen his hearing aid out, so I walked over to him, thanked him & told him to put them back in, he smiled knowingly and sat down, we laughed about this later. Sue Joyce

Bill was one of the nicest and most humane people in the Trotskyist movement. When I "did my back in" at the WRP printworks in Rumson, Bill and Rae took me in and looked after me.

Bill was a worker, a Trotskyist and a leader. He wrote important texts for the movement on major developments. My abiding memory. During the WRP split, some comrades were disoriented, and turned up at the Rumson printshop armed with pickaxe handles. Bill fearlessly faced them down at the gate, said anyone could come in who stood for the Fourth International, and had them pile up their clubs and come in for the discussion →

→ Our comrade Balaz Nagy is himself seriously ill, but has asked me to join his name to the expressions of support to the family and comrades.
